

ENVIRONMENTAL SUSTAINABILITY INDEX 2023

More than six in 10 organizations globally (62%) say recent wildfires, floods, and storms in 2023 will have a material impact on their environmental initiatives, according to the fifth edition of Honeywell's Environmental Sustainability Index (ESI.)

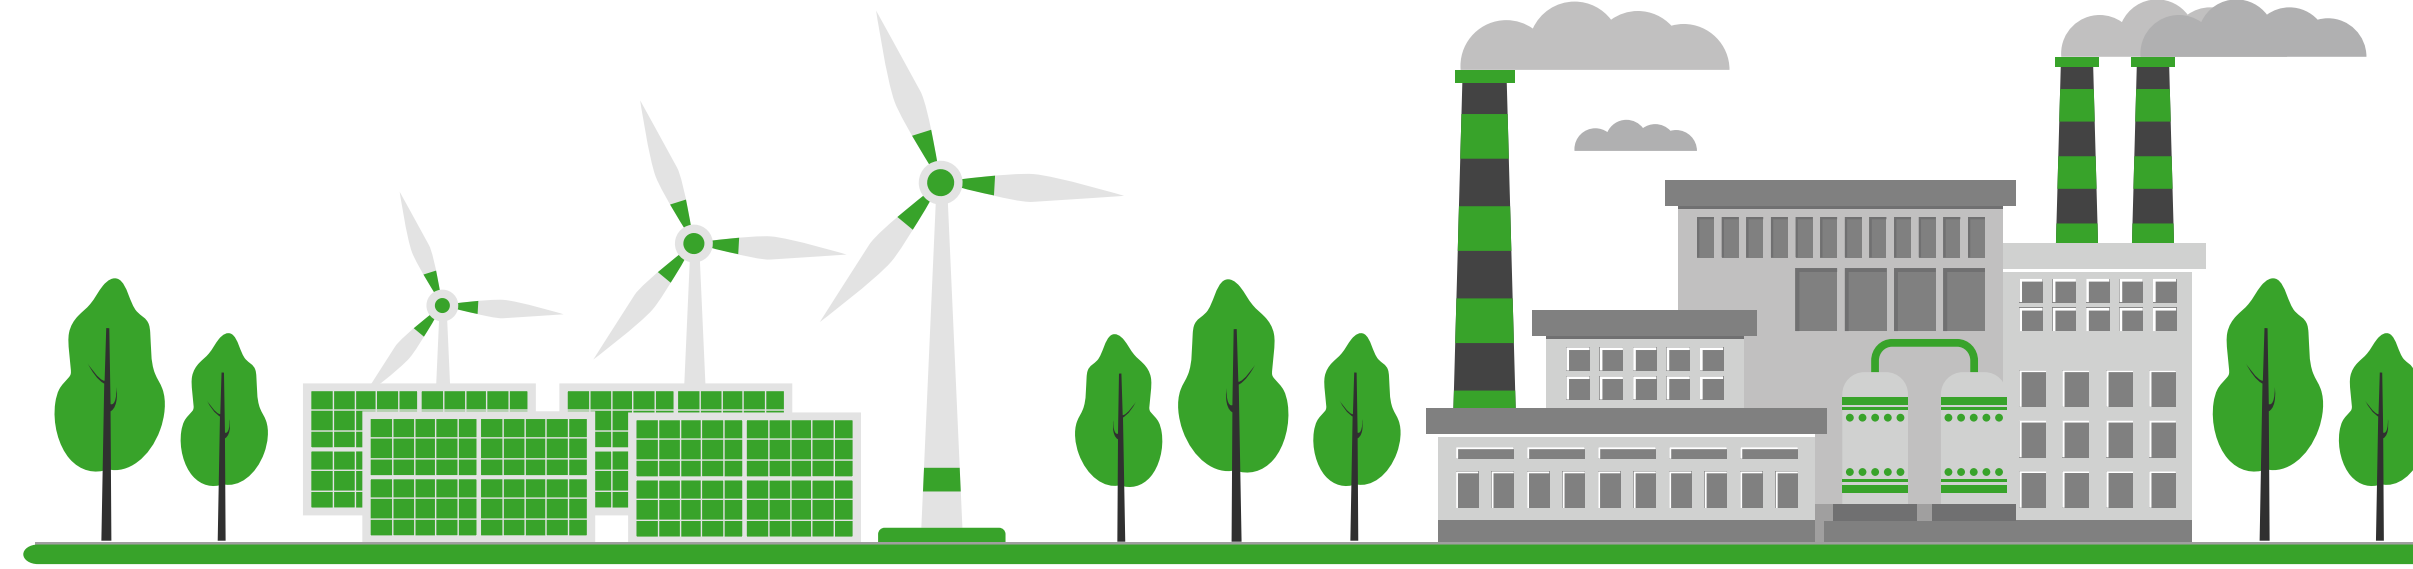

88%

to invest in energy evolution and efficiency initiatives.

84%

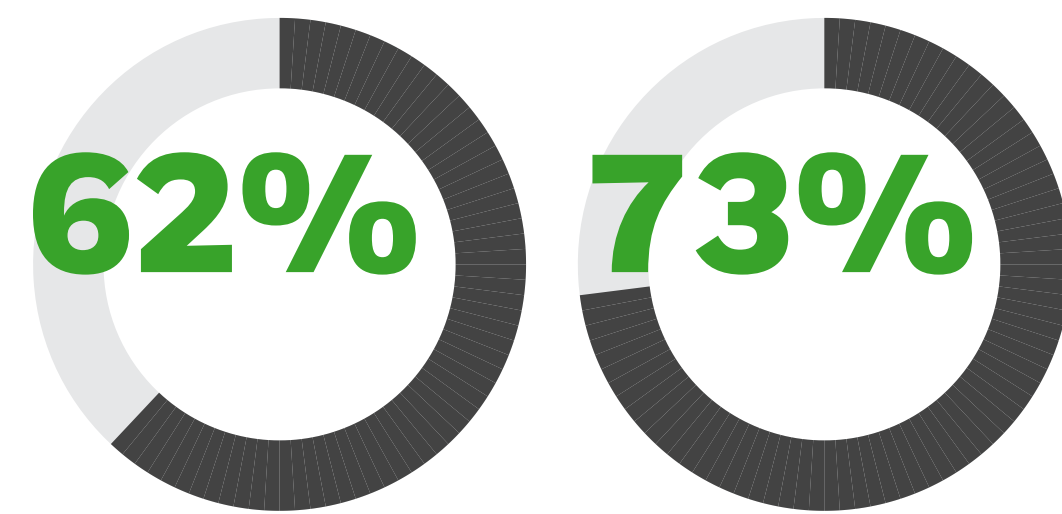

are planning to invest more in emissions reduction and pollution prevention.

1 in 5

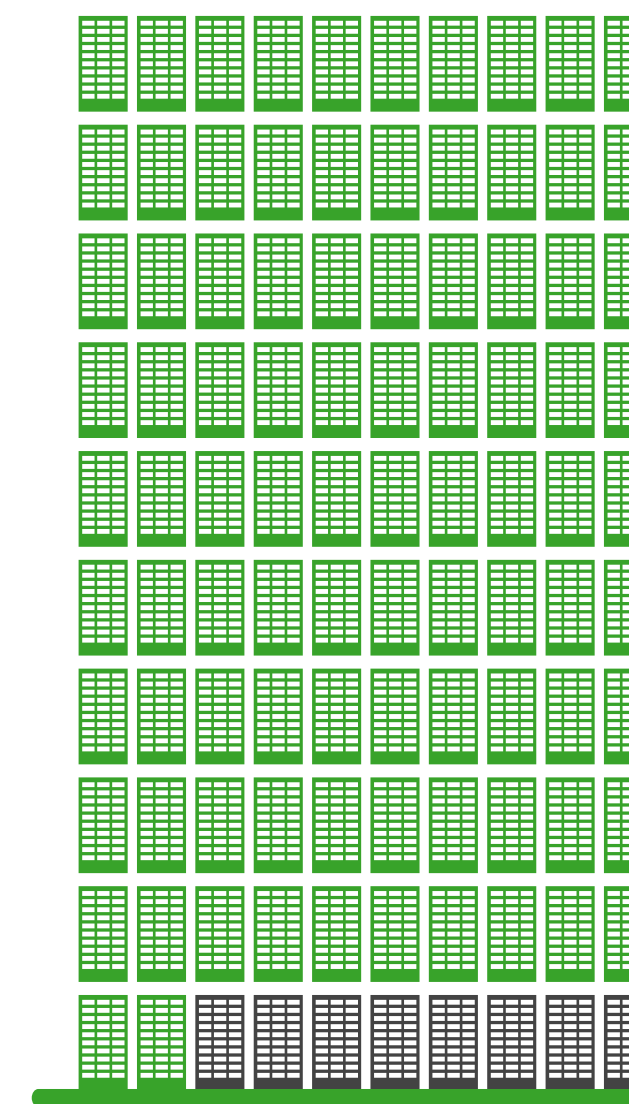

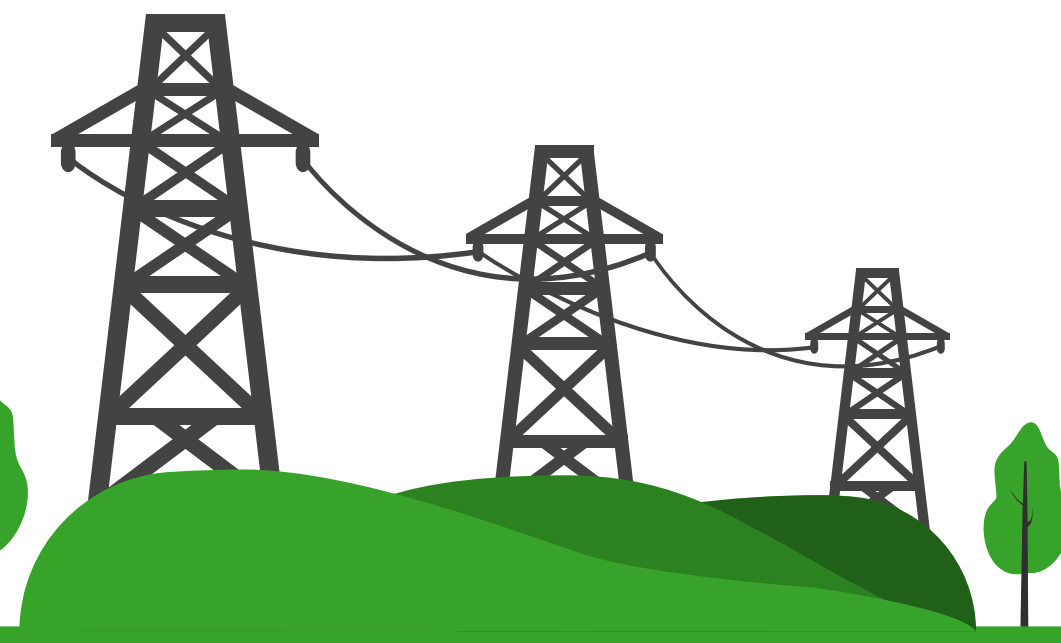

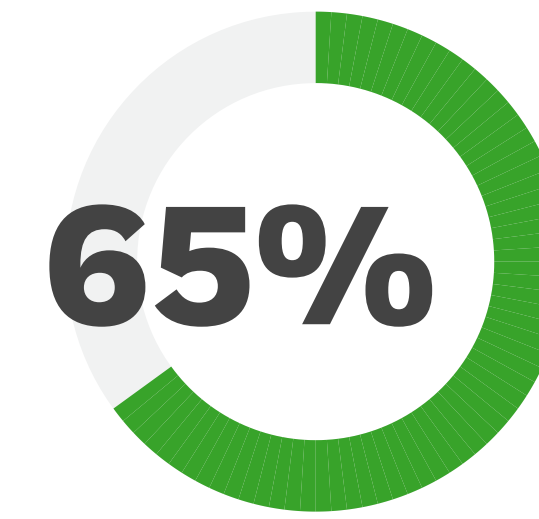

organizations are now taking a technology-driven approach to their sustainability initiatives, the highest percentage since the launch of the index.

2022 vs. 2023

more optimistic about reaching sustainability goals in 2030.

The energy sector vs. other industries covered in the study has the highest level of confidence with a score of:

92% of companies have an ESG reporting process.

30% of respondents say the responsibility resides with C-suites.

